Get to know the location

While the houses of the clergy used to be located in the southern part of the old town, the citizens' homes were in the north-west of the town. The buildings and streets of this district also served trade and commerce and markets were held here. Originally, the alleys were much wider. But since the walled city suffered from a lack of space, the alleys were vaulted over on both sides at the beginning of the 15th century. This gave rise to the Große und Kleine Lauben streets, which used to be called vaults. They provided protection from rain and from heat.

According to the city law book of 1604, one of the city's ten public draw wells was located right outside the former "Trinkstube" tavern under the Große Lauben arcades. This tavern then became a café and later a hotel and nowadays houses a branch office of the Volksbank bank. The fountain is still in the same place, and while it has been restored, its traditional shape has been preserved.

For precautionary reasons, we limit the load to 20kg vertically or horizontally, so as not to damage the historic buildings.

Technical restrictions

- As this venue has historic buildings, no new fixing points can be added on walls.
- No video mapping or projection (projection can only be part of the project).
- Installation should not block the street.
- In case of suspended installation, minimal height should be 4 meters, due to delivery cars.
- The sound should be ambient, of lower volume (this is a residential area).
- Street lighting cannot be entirely turned off, due to public safety.
